

ABSTRACT

An object of the invention is to provide a communication terminal capable of causing an associated communication
5 terminal to execute the function at the level required by the home terminal.

A communication terminal of the invention is a video telephone 1 having a communication function and installing a common function to a function that a video telephone 2 installs,
10 and includes a display image generation section 13A for generating data to execute the function that the video telephone 1 installs and data to execute the function that the video telephone 2 installs, and a data transmission section 11A for transmitting the data to execute the function that the 15 video telephone 2 installs.